Congratulations on your paper in press, I look forward to reading it. Of course, if and when this manuscript is published your paper will no longer be a definitive reference since the AMPERE polar cap boundaries will be missing!

Given that the AMPERE products used in this paper are all appropriately referenced and since I do not have access to your soon-to-be published paper, it is unlikely that it will be referenced in this manuscript. However, if you would like to send me a pre-print I would be happy to read it now and consider whether or not it would be appropriate to include.
