

The authors have addressed all my concerns, so I would like to recommend the paper for publication. I only have one suggestion. Is it possible to generalize your concluded spatial resolution from Earth's magnetosheath to other plasma environments, e.g., foreshock and solar wind? Some discussion may help increase the impact of the study.